Premier Daladier Prepares To Answer Mussolini's Settlement Demands

COLONIAL CLAIMS

Task is That of Making Italy Half-Hearted Friend, Or An Enemy

By J. C. Oestreicher
I. N. S. Foreign Editor

Appeasement or estrangement?
What era of Franco-Italian amity that could alter the balance of power in Europe for an adversary that can only stiffen Fascist resistance?

These were the questions asked in Europe today as Premier Daladier prepared to answer Mussolini's firm demand for settlement of Italy's colonial claims upon France in Djibouti, Tunisia and Suez.

Daladier can hardly chart some new path untrodden by any of his predecessors.

Upon the shoulders of the chunky Daladier, the man who looks like Napoleon, has fallen the task of making Italy a half-hearted friend or a mortal enemy. He has no alternative. Should he turn his back upon Italy, the estrangement will be complete and as Mussolini said, "unimpeachable."

Should he negotiate, he may be doing nothing more than to defer the inevitable, giving Europe and the world a breathing spell during which Italy will grow steadily stronger and add new sinews to the axis which binds her to Germany.

In announcement of Daladier's choice this afternoon will be found some clue to the "momentous decision" which seemingly has been preached by the British government in conduct of its foreign policy.

If the French Premier rejects Mussolini outright, one thing can be regarded as certain—the era of appeasement in Europe has ended.

BURGOS, Spain, Mar. 29—Valencia, last important city of central Spain to hold out against Generalissimo Franco surrendered unconditionally today.

The fall of Valencia on the heels of Madrid was announced in an official communiqué issued by Nationalist headquarters in Burgos.

Valencia was the first temporary capital established by the Republican government in Spain as its retreat from Madrid. Meanwhile, mopping up activities continued throughout the central zone.

MADRID, Mar. 29—(INS)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's victorious forces advanced rapidly north and south of conquered Madrid today following yesterday's bloodless occupation of the old Spanish capital.

At the same time the Franco regime consolidated its position in the city itself while the war-famished population kept up its feverish rejoicing.

But behind the revelry and the shouted Franco slogans and grim business of the clean-up began—a round-up of special enemies of the Franco regime who were unable to escape before Madrid capitulated.

President Roosevelt Leaves Today On Vacation

By George Durno
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 29—(INS)— President Roosevelt is leaving Washington this afternoon for a ten-day stay in the Southland, which he regards as the nation's number one economic problem. Until Eastertide, the Executive will relax in his cottage atop Pine Mountain at Warm Springs, Ga.

While South Mr. Roosevelt will tour Alabama tomorrow, making three stops and at least two informal talks
—one at Tuskegee Institute, Negro educational center, and the other at Auburn where Alabama Polytechnic Institute is located. The third brief stop will be made at Opelika.

It was possible the President would dwell again on the problem of the South's economic relationship to the North. Neither speech, however, will be broadcast. One of his final gestures before leaving Washington was proposal of a cotton export program designed to dispose of the huge cotton surplus with Federal aid.

Secretary of Commerce Harry L.
Hopkins is accompanying the President to Warm Springs. Hopkins has been laid up with intestinal influenza and "the boss" invited him South to recuperate.

Another of the Executive's moves preliminary to boarding his special train shortly after luncheon was a suggestion to his Congressional leaders that they concentrate only on a handful of vitally important bills, pass everything else up at this session and point to an early adjournment.

Would Broaden Scope Of Teacher Tenure Act

HARRISBURG, Mar. 29—(INS)—
Extension of the Teachers Tenure Act to include six additional categories is asked in four bills presented in the Senate by Senator Leo C. Mundy, Luterne Democrat.

The bills would broaden the Tenure Act to include school dentists, teachers of State normal schools, medical inspectors, chief medical inspectors, medical directors, medical supervisors, and all school nurses regardless of whether they are qualified teachers.

In the House, Rep. E. Kent Kane, R.
McKean, urged the repeal of the life tenure provision of the present act.
Kane also recommended that "some form of luxury tax" be imposed to provide funds to meet school needs.

WOULD EMPOWER STATE TO TAKE OVER CANALS

Those No Longer Used As Waterways Would Be Made Into Parks

SOME FOR HIGHWAYS

HARRISBURG, Mar. 29—(INS)—A bill empowering the state to take over certain canals no longer used for water transport was introduced jointly in the House today by Reps.
Thomas B. Stockham and Wilson L.
Yeakel, Bucks County Republicans.

The secretary of forests and waters would be authorized, with the approval of the Governor, to "accept by gift, grant or other lawful means certain canal properties whose use as highways for transportation by water has ceased or been abandoned."

The bill provides that owners of such properties shall be paid "no consideration" except with the Governor's approval, and stipulates that the secretary of forests and waters shall "supervise, maintain and regulate all such properties so acquired for state purposes."

Stockham and Yeakel introduced a companion measure authorizing the secretary of forests and waters to transfer, with the approval of the State Parks Commission, portions of the canal properties to the Department of Highways for highway purposes.

"The portions which may be transferred are those which are deemed undesirable to be retained for park purposes," read the bill.

Stockham said he believed that that section of the Delaware Division of the Pennsylvania Canal south of Morrisville was suitable for a highway but that the portion between Morrisville and Easton would be suitable for parks.

HARRISBURG, Mar. 29—(INS)—
An attempt will be made to strengthen the Administration anti-macing bill, it was learned today, probably so as to prevent "voluntary" contributions to political parties from state employees.

The House bill, now on second reading, has been passed over twice in the Senate upon the request of Sen. Israel Stiefel, D. Phila., who is now drawing up amendments.

The Senate passed a joint resolution sponsored by Sen. George Woodward, R. Phila., providing for submission to the electorate of a constitutional amendment permitting counties and municipalities to fix their borrowing capacity on the assessed valuation of real estate alone, instead of as present on real estate plus personal property.
The resolution now goes to the House.

Among the bills introduced was one by Sen. George Kunkel, D. Dauphin, authorizing the General State Authority to build county court houses and permitting the counties to lease land to the authority and then pay rentals for the constructed buildings over 30 year period.

Up for second reading today was the House bill ousting three Democratic members of the General State Authority, Rep. Herbert B. Cohen, York, Sen.
George Kunkel, Dauphin, and Austin McCullough, Lancaster editor. There was also a resolution calling for an investigation of the State Bureau of Aeronautics.

Sen. Louis H. Farrell, Philadelphia Republican, announced the report of the Elections Committee on the Salus-Levin contest would be delayed two weeks.

Solebury Chapel Plans For Spring Services

YARDLEY, Mar. 29—Special services have been arranged for Trinity Chapel, Solebury, under direction of the rector, the Rev. Kenneth MacDonald. The special services will start Palm Sunday, April 2nd, with morning prayer and sermon at 10.30 a. m. The choir will feature special music for the occasion under direction of Mrs. E. M.
Paxson, organist. The Church School will meet at 9.30.

The usual three-hour devotional service with meditations and addresses will be held on Good Friday, when a special offertory for the work of the church in Palestine will be taken.

Easter Day will be observed by a celebration of the Holy Eucharist, at 10.30 a. m. The choir will sing Easter music, with Mrs. Isabella McQ. Hoopes as soloist. The Rev. Dr. MacDonald will preach. The church school will meet at 9.40, when Easter eggs will be distributed.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Sponsored by the Morrisville Young Republican Club, the motion picture, "Fury," starring Spencer Tracy, will be given in the Community Theatre, Morrisville, Monday night, April 10.

At the next meeting of the group to be held Wednesday night, April 5, James Fitzcharles will entertain with feats of magic. Refreshments will be served.

A large and enthusiastic audience comprising almost the entire membership of the Doylestown Co-operative Concert Association, greeted Erno Balogh, composer-pianist, in the initial concert of a series of three, in the Doylestown High School auditorium on Saturday evening. Large groups from Quakertown, Sellersville, Newtown and other places in the county added to the Doylestown music devoted to compose an audience not often seen in Doylestown.

Erno Balogh did not disappoint anyone in that critical audience. His brilliant playing and masterful technique brought him round after round of genuine applause which seemed to grow in volume after the rendition of each succeeding number.

With dairymen representing both the Guernsey and Holstein breeds, the Bucks County Advanced Registry Testing Association was organized at a meeting held in the Administration Building, Doylestown, Saturday, when election of officers took place.

The officers include Willis M. Hunsberger, Plumsteadville, president; Joseph S. Briggs, Yardley, vice-president; Russell Smith, Wycombe, secretary-treasurer, and the directors:
William F. Fretz, Pipersville; E. F.
Stewart, Colmar, and Ernest Foellner, Otsville.

The newly organized group will have a combination of regular work testing association work and official tests of various breeds.

The group hired Alfred C. Bleiler, of near Fogelsville, Lehigh county, as tester.

Other members include: J. Howard Cliffe, Ivyland; Claude Myers, Plum-steadville; R. J. Boltz, Solebury; W.
H. Doubler, Hartville; Theodore Kleinoff, Fountainville, and Philip Smith, New Hope.

The meeting was presided over by Paul S. Williams, of the dairy department of Pennsylvania State College, who is supervisor of the advanced registry testing.

The membership is composed of pure bred cattle breeders of Bucks county, a number of whom are outstanding dairymen in the East.

Earle R. Leidich, Williams township, Northampton county, was elected president of the Farmers' American Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Bucks County at the annual re-organization meeting held at the Ferndale Hotel, Ferndale.

tended the celebration of the 63rd anniversary of the Middletown Grange held here Saturday night. The affair was held in the Memorial House where a chicken supper was served.

In addition to this, an interesting program was presented under the direction of the lecturer, Mrs. R. Walker Jackson.

Included among the guests was an official of the State Grange and several representatives of Lower Bucks and Philadelphia Pomona Grange, No. 22.
The State Grange was represented at the anniversary celebration by its overseer, Isaac S. Gross, Plumsteadville, who was accompanied to this place by Mrs. Gross. Another guest was Frank L. Magill, Solebury, master of Lower Bucks Pomona, who was accompanied by Mrs. Magill. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Winder, Fallsington, the former Pomona deputy, were also among the guests, as was also County Commissioner Joseph D. Baker, Holland, who gave the main address of the evening.

Speaking briefly, Mr. Gross commented upon the large attendance of young people. He also spoke of the future of the grange. Mr. Winder announced that a number of candi-

Misunderstanding

Harrisburg, Mar. 29—Governor Arthur H. James today blamed the "snubbing" by Democratic Senators of his invitation to a "get together" at a luncheon on a misunderstanding.

Senate Democrats rejected the Governor's luncheon tender because Senator C. Halle Sipe, Armstrong, had been barred from the office of the Chief Executive during a conference on milk prices.

Governor James, who insisted that Senator Sipe had failed to make an appointment, declared in a letter to Democratic floor leader Harry Shapiro:
"At no time since my inauguration have I attempted to make myself inaccessible to any person or Senator."

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Mr. Garner and Mr. Farley

Washington, March 28.

AS we approach the 1940 Presidential Convention, the first delegates to which will be selected in a little more than ten months, it becomes clearer
that control of the Democratic one will be largely in the hands of two men—Vice-President Garner and Postmaster General Farley.

THERE, of course, will be other delegate-controlling leaders cooperating and consulting, but they will be the most influential. Certainly, they are so recognized now and that fact alone tends to make them more so, it being the disposition of the smaller leaders to ally themselves with the larger. At this time most politicians agree on the probabilities of a Garner-Farley dominated convention and, despite the points that can be made against it, a good many consider the nomination of either a Garner-Farley or a Farley-Garner ticket as logical an outcome as that the Republican choice will be Dewey and Taft or Taft and Dewey.

ON THE one side there is the chance that the greatly respected Mr. Cordell Hull may develop as the most available man and, on the other, that Senator Vandenberg, who is sincerely not a candidate, may be "drafted." And there is always the remote chance of some unforeseen circumstance bringing one of the minor party figures to the front. But on the off-tested theory that it is the expected which happens in politics
the Garner-Farley and Taft-Dewey combinations are indicated. Any other involves dropping the first-string men for the second string.

DATE DRAWS NEAR FOR THE PLAY TOURNAMENT

Three Upper Classes Are To Divide Proceeds of Intramural Event

ON FRIDAY EVENING

Friday is drawing near, the date for the fourth Intramural Class Play Tournament in the Bristol high school auditorium, and the curtain will rise at 8.15 o'clock.

All three classes—the sophomore, junior and senior—are working hard to gain first place. The class treasuries are dangerously low at this time of year, so the prizes are doubly tempting. The winning class will receive 40 per cent of the proceeds; the class winning second place will receive 30 per cent, and the other class will receive 30 per cent. The dramatic club, which sponsors the tournament will receive ten per cent.

The cast of the Junior play, "Kiss The Star," which is to be presented first this year, includes Ken Mason, editor of the college newspaper "The Star," Bill Lynch; Bert Niles, his assistant, and a junior, John Melillo; Frances Fulson, daughter of the president of the college, and a senior, Peggy Wildman; Mary, Ken's girl and a senior, Anna Ennis; Hiram Hitcherpuss, a 25 year old owner of a Dude ranch in Wyoming, Jack Smith; the freshman (Frosh), Arthur Brooks.
The promptress is Virginia Vetter, and the stage manager, Walter Hardy.

The Sophomore cast of "Her First Party Dress" consists of Dora, maid at Crocher's, Emma Sharpe, Patsy Crocher, whose dress it is, Doris Pearson; her mother, Myrtle Collier, her nine year old sister, Anna Oliver; Mr.
Crocher, her father, Calvin Hutchinson; Jerry Crocher, her older brother, Harold Carter; Vernon Stack, her big moment, Fred Stone.

The seniors' play, which is called "Sweet Clean Off Her Feet," has a very capable cast consisting of Joe Winters, a vacuum sweeper salesman, John Warren; Mack, his stooge, Louis Russo; Ruthie Holliday, a poetry fan, Elizabeth Nelson; Doris Holliday, the older daughter, Evelyn Flagg; Roger (Poison) Holliday, the kid brother, Charles Scheffy; Mr. Holliday, owner of Easy Breezy Sweepers, Inc., Tom Collier. The promptress is Miss Marion Wright, and stage manager, Walter Repella.

Judges are as follows: Miss Geneva Dolbow, dramatic coach at Eddystone high school; Ralph Bilderback, former member of the Bristol high school dramatic club, and of the Temple Players, and at present an announcer at station WTNJ, and Mrs. Paul D.
Brown, who was at one time dramatic coach at Princeton High School in Illinois.

It's Not A Bad Idea

(By "The Stroller")

The tramps have it!
By "it" we mean the right idea.
These travelers arrive at Bristol in the late afternoon or early evening and they know where to go for a good night's lodging—the municipal building.

Seven a. m., arrives, and the rule at the municipal building is that the lodgers must be out by that hour. That is breakfast time and they know where to get it—at the kitchen door of one of Bristol's hundreds of homes.

It is still too early these days to go on the road for the early morning hours are still snappy, but they know where to keep warm until about 10 o'clock—in the railroad station.

With the hour for new adventures to be sought they turn—to the open road.

DOYLESTOWN WOMAN INHERITS PROPERTY FROM HER MOTHER

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Harvey Bequeathed Residue of A $4,000 Personal Estate

GETS TRUST FUND ALSO

Real Estate Holdings of Ezraetta J. Moon Left to Her Husband

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 29—Mrs.
Elizabeth S. Harvey, East Court street, was bequeathed the residue of a $4,000
personal estate left by her mother, Mrs. Emma Shoemaker, who died here March 1, according to her will probated in the Register of Wills' office here.

A son, Jacob C. Shoemaker, was bequeathed $300, and a trust fund of $1750 was created for the benefit of a daughter, Lottie, with certain provisions.

Mrs. Harvey, who will inherit the residue of the estate, as well as the trust fund, was described as having "comforted her mother and made a pleasant home for her." The will, which was executed May 7, 1931, named Mrs. Harvey and the Doylestown Trust Company executors.

A son-in-law, George Rosenthal, 343 Washington avenue, Sellersville, who was also named executor, will inherit the $1200 personal estate of Henry Dettra, of Sellersville.

With the exception of one son, Charles W. McGowan, who will receive $5, two sons, William H. and Frank B. McGowan will share all the property, real and personal, of James McGowan, of New Hope, who left a personal estate of $170,77, and real estate holdings on South Main street in New Hope, valued at $1200. John Simon, of New Hope, was named executor.

A grandson, Kenneth Gross, Ottaville, R. D. 1, who was named the executor, will inherit the personal estate of Susanna Gross, Nockamixon township. Her will was executed January 28, and she died March 13 leaving a small estate.

The $2,000 personal and $1500 real estate holdings of Ezraetta J. Moon, of Lower Makefield township, will be inherited by her husband, James M.
Moon, with reservations. Following his death, a daughter-in-law will receive $1,000, and granddaughters $500 and the residue will be inherited by a son, R. Barclay Moon, and daughter, Mary J. Moon.

According to the will, the estate was placed "in trust" and the husband will receive an income for life.

Letters of administration in the estate of Harry C. Jones, Bensalem township, were granted to Dorothy Dessolet, Oakford. There are a stepson, six daughters and two sons who are heirs.

Charles Schabinger was granted the letters of administration in the estate

A WINNING WAR

In these days of sensational and discouraging news developments over the world, along come the scientists with a major contribution on the achievement side of the ledger. Time may prove that the most significant development of the last year is the proof of the drug, sulfa-pyridine. To date the use of the drug indicates that it will eliminate pneumonia as a major cause of death. That is not a romantic speculation, but the calm and well-considered opinion of conservative physicians. Nor is this hope for some distant future. Within a few months the drug should be available wherever the up-to-date practice of medicine is known in the United States.

These conclusions are based on thousands of cases in which the drug was administered. It has been given a thorough trial in England with supporting evidence coming from tests in all the larger American cities. The present outlook is that mortality in the most deadly types of pneumonia that attack patients in a weakened condition from operations or other illness, which have been taking a death toll of from 50 to 70 per cent, will be reduced to 5 or 10 per cent. The more common types of pneumonia that follow exposure or a bad cold have had a mortality record of 15 to 20 per cent. Sulfa-pyridine is expected to cut it down to 2 or 3 per cent.

Other treatments for pneumonia have been expensive, which means they are often reserved for a last resort. Serums, of doubtful value, are expensive. Oxygen treatments are specially expensive. Sulfa-pyridine is cheap and easy to administer. When the medical profession becomes more certain of all its effects, it may be given at the first indication of pneumonia, long before the disease has reached a threatening stage. The quick response to the drug (the break usually comes within fifteen to twenty-four hours) prevents the complications that often follow pneumonia to keep the patient in bed a month or two.

Wider use may tone down the sensational record somewhat, but there is every reason to believe the results will stand. Medical science that has moved decisively against diphtheria, smallpox and other diseases now records a new achievement. By this time next year pneumonia may no longer be classed among the major causes of death.

SPRING

"Miracles don't happen," said Matthew Arnold, and yet Arnold was England's garden poet. The miracle of spring is beginning to happen all around us.

You can explain by an astronomical diagram why a March day is just so long and why its sun is just so warm. You can explain by chemistry why the crocuses are up, and hyacinths are coming along, and the forsythia is about ready to open.

But nobody can tell why spring makes optimists of pessimists, and turns lazy armchair readers into sprightly lads with rake and hoe. Already amateur gardeners are cleaning last year's mud from their work shoes, and yearning for the bumper crop of callouses that will be in full bloom a month hence. Faith is renewed in the artists who paint the pictures in seed catalogs.

A Kansas farmer who goes out to the barn whenever he feels a quarrel with the wife coming on, is commencing to smell like the cattle.

The Great Game of Politics

It may happen, but it isn't likely, and when the situation is stated in simple terms the reasons are clear.

FIRST, it ought to be plain not only that Mr. Roosevelt will not be renominated himself but that he will not be in position to dictate the nominee. Both these things are accepted by every practical politician—disputed only by the uninformed or the extreme New Deal partisan not in position to be realistic. But, assuming that the President wants to do these things, certainly it will be conceded he cannot do either without the aid of Mr. Garner and Mr. Farley; and if Mr. Garner and Mr. Farley are not utterly opposed to both, then nothing in the situation makes sense at all.

THOSE who know them best are completely convinced of that. They are understood to feel, as do most other regular Democrats, that action along those lines would widen the Democratic split and deprive the party of hope. Perhaps the soundness of this feeling is best attested by the inability of the Republicans to disguise that next to the third-term issue they would most welcome the nomination of an extreme New Dealer, such as Mr. Murphy or Mr. Hopkins. Certainly Mr. Garner would strongly oppose both and, despite his personal loyalty to the President, if, under any circumstances, Mr. Farley could be gotten to acquiesce in either, those who know him best are wholly wrong.

AS things are today, the anti-New Deal Democrats seem solidifying behind Mr. Garner while the practical party politicians look to Mr. Farley for leadership. There are other men who will have to be considered and consulted, but in any convention made up, as this one will be, of uninstructed delegates and a few favorite-son candidates, control ought not to be difficult for the two. The reasons the President will not dominate are, first, because he is on his way out and the gratitude of the jobholders is for what they can get, not for what they have had; second, because while the machine which Mr. Farley has built up in the last six years has been used for Mr. Roosevelt, the adherence of the practical men who control State primaries is to Mr. Farley. He is the man with whom they have dealt; he speaks their language and is their personal friend.

FOR example, no one doubts that today Mr. Farley has "in the bag" the delegates to the next convention from the Virginia Islands, the Philippines, Puerto Rico and Alaska, just as he had in 1931 for the 1932 convention. Nor is there much doubt that Mr. Farley and his little group in New York will control the delegation from that State rather than the Corcoran-Jackson-Hopkins group, which from time to time solemnly discusses ways of taking it away. Mr. Garner, of course, will start off with the big Texas delegation, but he will have a lot more than that. The logic of a controlling combination between Mr. Garner and Mr. Farley is clear and there is reason to believe that they pretty well understand each other now.

THEY HAVE the same feeling about the Democratic party; the same feeling about third terms; the same feeling about the "intellectual liberals." In addition, they are equally convinced that the man nominated for President must be supported by Mr. Roosevelt. Most observers will agree as to that and then the names of Garner and Farley are the first to come to mind. One is his Postmaster-General, who has served him long and loyally; the other made his nomination possible in 1932 and has been twice on the ticket with him. Both have received from the President the highest praise; both have been proclaimed his friends. Named on a platform which indorses his Administration and praises him, Mr. Roosevelt might not like it, but he could not escape from supporting them. At least that is the way the practical politicians see things now.

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL
Copyright, 1939
King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD—Question of who should dub the war paint on the Indians in the picture, "Geronimo," has led to a comic impasse at Paramount.

The braves threatened to walk off the set unless they could do the decorating themselves.

Seems as though every streak of the paint has a significance. But a union contract has a significance, too. The studio has agreed that no actor shall be made up by anyone but a member of the union.

In a compromise solution, Director Paul Sloane will employ professional makeup men who will draw pay but will allow the Indians to do the work. Thus, both the union and the Indians are satisfied.

Although she gets co-star billing in the Warner movie, "On Your Toes," Vera Zorina wanted more assurance that her interests are being looked out for. That's the reason why her bridegroom, George Ballanchine, has come to the coast. It's whispered that Zorina would rather have Ray Bolger play the other lead than James Cagney. . . . Because of his dancing ability.

Intimates of Jackie Coogan insist that $300,000 is a high figure for the money involved in the suit with his mother and step-father. . . . That $180,000 would be a closer figure.

Incidentally, Jackie is burned to a crisp over his mother's reported statement that he has earned and frittered away $40,000 since he was 21.

"I have earned only $19,000," he tells me, "and I can prove it!"

The reconciliation of the Hollywood beauty, Monica Bannister, and her song writing husband, Eddie Cherkese, is a movie scenario that happened in real life. After they separated, she went to New York and got a job at the paradise cafe. But soon she was stricken with partial paralysis, the result of an old auto accident. One of the other girls in the show wrote Cherkese, telling him what had happened.

Still in love with his wife, he rushed her to the coast by plane and got her the best medical attention. She is well now and happily reunited with the man who stood by her. She may even get another chance at a movie career, for Director W. S. Van Dyke has given her a bit in a picture. The title of the film might have been written especially for the occasion—"It's a Wonderful World."

You don't amount to anything in Hollywood these days unless you introduce a new dance craze. Even Jane Withers will do it in her new picture, "Boy Friend."

Number is called "Doing the Socialite" and Jane will dance it with a 21-year-old partner.

Because it was so much lighter, they decided to let Louis Hayward wear a copper mask in "The Man With the Iron Mask." But now he has copper poisoning.

When the Joe Penners were married, he promised his wife they'd spend their twelfth anniversary in Bermuda. It was only a dream then, but dreaming must pay, for Joe makes good April 1. He returns here a month later to start his new R-K-O contract with a picture that sounds like another dream. It's called "The Day the Bookies Wept."

Every now and then one turns up some unexpected fact about Ann Dvorak and Leslie Fenton. Just now, for instance, they are selling an island near the coast of Sicily and buying another off Key West. The Sicilian island was purchased on one of those mysterious journeys that the two stars made away from Hollywood. It's about two square blocks in size and contains an old house dating back for centuries. Both Ann and Leslie currently are busy with film assignments. . . . she acting in Columbia's "Blind Alley" and he directing his first feature, M-G-M's "100 to One."

Don't ask me why, but George Brent carried 20 law books when he went on a desert vacation. . . . The new title for the Henie picture, "Cupid Goes to Press," already has been thrown out. They've gone back to "When Winter Comes." . . . Ouida Bergere's garden party for the Hollywood Guild ought to be something! Among other things, she's ordering an artificial moon. . . . Joy Hodges, who used to sing torch songs, has learned two Puccini scores, "Madame Butterfly" and "La Boheme." . . . That was Toni Anderson with Wally Vernon at the House of Murphy. . . . Get Alice Faye to show you a diamond ring Tony Martin sent her. . . . Theda Bara turned down all interview requests in New York. . . . Eddie Norris flies to Mexico City soon in his new plane. He's one of Hollywood's top aviators. Has 425 hours in the air.

"The Doctor" by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

CHAPTER XIII

Katie went a dead white and caught at the table for support. "You're not going to leave, are you?"

He swung on her. "You were drinking last night. That's true, isn't it?"

"I never did before, Chris. I never drank anything."

"Well, you made a good start," he said savagely. He did not even notice her use of his name. "I suppose you know where you've been? Or did you know before you went?" She shook her head. "I passed out, I guess. There was a woman there, and she said she'd take me home. I didn't know until today when I woke up. I was going to jump out the window."

He saw that she was telling the truth, although perhaps not all of it; and she looked entirely exhausted. He pushed a chair behind her, and she dropped into it as if her knees would no longer hold her.

"Does Mom know?"

"No."

"Are you going to tell her? It would kill her, Chris."

He considered that, his head thrust forward. It was futile to expect anything from Lily but tears and recriminations, and the affair was too grave for either. Katie had escaped once, but another time it might not be so easy. And he did not want the girl driven to the street.

"I'll think about it, Katie," he said more gently. "But you'll have to fix up a story that she'll believe. What on earth made you do it? Take those drinks, I mean?"

And then to his utter horror she slid off the chair to the floor at his feet and began to sob.

"I was so wretched, Chris. You never even see me. You look at me as though I wasn't there. And I'm so crazy about you, so crazy about you."

He was almost frozen with consternation.

"You silly little fool! Get up and stop crying. What do you know about love anyhow? Get up and stop this nonsense."

Chris was red with indignation and embarrassment when Katie dragged herself to her feet, but she looked so crushed that for the first time he felt a faint stirring of pity for her. After all, she was hardly more than a child, a foolish, romantic child; and she must have had a pretty thin time that day, to say the least.

"Listen," he said. "When did you eat last?"

"I don't know. Last night, I guess."

"That's what's wrong with you. Suppose you sit here while I make some coffee and find some bread and butter. I missed my dinner, too."

"I'll do it," she said, and got up. "And—just forget what I said, Doctor. I guess I was excited. I kind of lost my head. I didn't mean it, you know."

He was glad to let it go at that, to believe it was true. When the odor of boiling coffee brought Lily Walters down somewhat later, it was to find them companionably eating bread and butter, and to listen to Katie's carefully invented story of having danced until morning and slept all day at the home of some girl she called Gertrude.

"You might at least have let me know."

"They haven't any telephone, Mom."

And that was all. Chris, listening to this exchange, could only marvel at the ease with which Katie had covered twenty-four hours of sheer drama and near tragedy. It was fantastic, incredible. But then the whole situation was fantastic. Sitting there at the kitchen table, eating incredible quantities of bread and drinking vast quantities of hot coffee, he surveyed what now amounted to his family; a helpless woman, a foolish girl, and a mongrel dog. His family!

He did not go to sleep for some time that night. Beyond the partition Katie was tossing restlessly, and he thought that she was crying. The little fool! He rapped on the wall.

"Listen, child," he called. "It's all over, and it's all right. Forget it and get some sleep."

"All right," she called back in a small voice. "Just so you're not angry."

"Who? Me? I'm never angry." He thought he heard her laugh a little, and at that he turned over and went to sleep.

On the first of December the Staunton Lewises gave their first dinner of the season—three footmen and Holmes in the hall, a table set with purple-and-white orchids in the dining room, and the driveway filled with the miscellany of the period: sleek horses drawing sleeker broughams and carriages, automobiles, and even here and there a taxicab.

He felt large, dominating, important. It was at such times that he tasted to the full the flavor of his success.

But that night he saw that Jerry was seated far from Beverly, and Annie saw him frown.

Never mind. Don't worry about him. Keep them apart, Annie thought.

Jerry, thus reinstated, was tremendously cheerful, however. His eyes were on Beverly as much as possible, and when the men joined the women later, he sought her out.

"Lovelier than ever, darling," he said.

"I'm not your darling, Jerry."

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL

Night, the air laden with the chill of death; a girl, wanted for murder, sits nervously in her roadster on the front end of a San Francisco ferry; a police car is driven onto the boat, and two officers alight to peer into every car; without a moment's hesitation, the girl drives crazily into the water—and the darkness; the swirling fog silently covers the splash.

This is one of the first thrilling scenes in "Trade Winds," Walter Wanger's adventure romance opening at the Bristol Theatre today with Fredric March and Joan Bennett in the starring roles. The girl who seizes this daring chance to escape is Miss Bennett herself. A few days the San Francisco police are notified that she has pawned a ring in Honolulu.

Thus begins a chase that extends half way around the world, with March, debonair private detective with an inordinate fondness for beautiful girls, in close pursuit of the fugitive. Another exciting romance is contributed by Ralph Bellamy and Ann Sothern, who also do their sleuthing on the run.

"Trade Winds" was directed by Tay Garnett and is released by United Artists.

RITZ THEATRE, CROYDON

"Down In Arkansas," the other half of the double bill at the Ritz today, is packed with thrills and humor. With the Weaver Brothers and Elviry the picture affords plenty of laughs. The saying that "the shotgun is law in them them hills," is true in some cases, but shotguns backfire in this picture and the law goes awry when a city slicker comes a "romancin'" in the Ozarks!

GRAND

How would you like to see John Barrymore in his greatest screen role? And with him the little boy, Peter Holden, who made such a tremendous hit in his first stage play, "On Borrowed Time?" And also the little girl who has been pronounced one of the finest actresses of the screen, regardless of age, and who steals nearly every show she is in? (Her name is Virginia Weidler.) You will find them all in a simply grand picture, "The Great Man Votes," which is showing today at the Grand Theatre. You can take it from those best suited to judge, that "The Great Man Votes" is a great treat for film fans!

LA CHAPPELLE TONIGHT

TRENTON, Mar. 29.—A novel and unique wrestling event is scheduled to be contested at the Arena tonight when Sador Szabo, the handsome Hungarian adonis, and Maurice LaChappelle, the nimble Frenchman, will vie in the feature attraction on Promoter Johnny Ipp's weekly mat card.

The uniqueness of the event is that the bout will be a mixed catch-as-catch can and Jui Jitsu match. One fall will be contested in the regulation American catch-as-catch-can and one fall will be Jui Jitsu. The winner of the quickest fall scored will have the choice of naming the third fall. The Jui Jitsu will be wrestled with the traditional Japanese jackets worn by the contestants.

Both men are adept at the Jui Jitsu style of wrestling. LaChappelle was an instructor to the French police department (Surete) in Paris, and Szabo gained experience wrestling several Japs in California.

Szabo and LaChappelle are undefeated on the local canvas and one of the most interesting bouts of the season should ensue.

Dr. John (Dropkick) Murphy, blond Irish favorite, will face a newcomer, Gene Bowman, former great athlete at the University of Tennessee, in the semi-feature. Chief Chewacki, the mad gypsy, will return to the local wars against Ernie Powers, a powerful grappler from Oregon; Kola Kwariani, one of the most colorful figures in the grappling world, recently returned from Europe, will vie with big Jim Wright of Texas; and John Gudiski, the rowdy Pole, will test George "Red" Ryan, carrot-topped Philadelphia. In the opening fray.

The first bout will start at 8.30 p. m.

DETROIT TIGERS FINE LOOKING OUTFIT NOW

By James L. Kilgallen (I. N. S. Sports Writer)

LAKELAND, Fla., Mar. 29.—(INS)—One of the finest looking outfits training in Florida this Spring are the Detroit Tigers. They look and act like real big league stuff and show the same indefinable "class" that distinguishes the world champion New York Yankees down here in the grapefruit circuit.

Peering at the Tigers you couldn't help being impressed by the lusty swatting of such fellows as Rudy York, Hank Greenberg, Charlie Gehringer and Frank Higgins, all of whom hit close to or over .300 last year. This, say Detroit sports writers, is the nucleus of the "best infield in the league."

Pitchers such as Schoolboy Rowe, Tommy Bridges, George Gill, Vern Kennedy, big league veterans, and the two sensational rookies—Fred Hutchinson, who won 25 and lost seven for Seattle last year, and Paul Trout, who won 22 and lost six for Beaumont—were pegging that ball in what looked like mid-season form.

"I'm not going out on any limb making predictions," said Manager Del Baker today as he watched his men work out. "But, naturally, I think I have a first class club."

"If the arms of Rowe and Bridges, which went bad last season, come around it will help a lot. I think we will go to the post with a strong infield and pretty well fixed in the pitching department."

"We finished fourth last year. What we will do this season is something I wouldn't want to predict this early in the game. You can say this: 'We'll be in that fight for the pennant.'"

Baker said he definitely made his mind up to keep York as a catcher. Rudy told Baker he didn't want to play the outfield and the Tiger manager thinks he owes it to York to let him play in the spot he prefers. York, one of the heaviest hitters in baseball, batted .298 last season. He is one of the league's home run threats. George Tebbels, who hit .294 last season, will split the catching with York. Also on hand is catcher Ed Parsons who hit .320 for Beaumont.

The Tiger infield has fielding class and looks formidable at bat. Greenberg, at first, is one of the game's outstanding home run sluggers. He batted .315 last year. The veteran Gehringer, at second, hit .306. Higgins at third, obtained from the Boston Red Sox, hit .303. Those three positions are set. Rogell, Croucher and a youngster named Perry will fight it out for the shortstop job. Croucher, who figures to outbat the regular third baseman, Rogell, probably will start the season at the hot corner.

Two of the first anti-Fascists to fall into Franco's dragnet were Foreign Minister Julian Besteiro of the crumbling Republican regime, who remained in Madrid when other members of the defense council fled to Valencia, and Col. Adolfo Prada, who became commander of Madrid defense forces when Col. Segismundo Casado was elevated to the defense council.

Both Besteiro and Prada were arrested by Franco disciplinary squads engaged in making the city safe for Franco's theatrical entry, which will be carried out with pageantry to mark Madrid's "liberation."

One of Franco's trusted aides, Col. Eduardo Lozas, was appointed military governor of Madrid to supervise the "purge" and also to distribute food and other necessities to the hungry, war-weary population.

Authorities hope to get the city back to a peace-time basis as soon as possible.

Meanwhile, it was reported that Franco's Falangist (Fascist) troops took over the towns of Cuenca and Ciudad real early this morning as the Nationalist forces unrelentingly pressed forward with their conquest of what remains of Republican Spain.

The Republican troops under command of General Jose Miaja, chief of the defense council who is now in Valencia, were reported completely disorganized and offering virtually no resistance to the fast-moving motorized Fascist troops.

Nationalist authorities in Madrid said the remaining territory under Republican domination was "rapidly falling to the nationalists," they boasted that:

"Valencia is expected to fall by the end of the week."

I never saw anybody who can stretch a dollar the way she does! Everything she buys is a good value—and she never seems to get stuck with things that look good, but fall apart the first time they're used.

I told her one day that she'd make the Purchasing Agent of any business look sick. She was pleased when she saw I meant it.

"It's perfectly simple," she said. "I watch the advertisements the same way a stock broker watches the ticker tape. They keep me informed on 'good buys' — and save me a lot of shopping around, as well."

Sounds simple, doesn't it? But I can tell you it's saved this family a lot of money!
